Former Federal Judge Abdul Kallon mentioned in multiple publications regarding joining the firm.

"Judge Kallon's experience as a federal judge, as well as his private practice experience prior to his years on the bench, will be invaluable both to our clients and in our ongoing efforts to develop next-generation litigation talent," Jessica Everett-Garcia, chair of Perkins Coie's commercial litigation practice group, said in a statement.

"I quickly came to realize that Perkins Coie would offer me the best opportunity to transition back into private practice, to work with talented individuals, and to develop a thriving practice," he said. (*Law360).
