

Ted Boling Quoted in E&E News—Manchin Deal Might Not Save Mountain Valley Pipeline

Partner Ted Boling was quoted in "Manchin Deal Might Not Save Mountain Valley Pipeline," an article in E&E News, regarding the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit's finding that Burger King and its franchisees are a single economic enterprise incapable of violating Section 1 of the Sherman Act.

Legislation from the West Virginia Democrat could give a boost to the beleaguered project by steering legal challenges to a different court. But regulatory experts caution that the proposal, as described by Manchin, won't guarantee the project gets completed.

"It doesn't necessarily direct an outcome," said Ted, a former longtime career federal official who served as associate director at the White House Council on Environmental Quality (CEQ) under former President Donald Trump.
