

The COVID-19 pandemic has turned many industries on their heads—the retail industry in particular. According to a recent study by Red Points, 58% of consumers have increased online shopping, and 73% expect to do so as the COVID-19 pandemic continues to keep consumers away from brick-and-mortar retail outlets.

Read the full article published by *Intellectual Property Magazine*.*

*Subscription-based publication

Authors

Patchen M. Haggerty

Partner

PHaggerty@perkinscoie.com 206.359.8614

Colleen Ganin

Partner

CGanin@perkinscoie.com 202.654.6237

Explore more in

Intellectual Property Law Trademark, Copyright, Internet & Advertising Retail & Consumer Products
Apparel & Footwear