

Potential and existing federal contractors and subcontractors face a thicket of obligations when they decide to enter into agreements to perform work for the federal government. Duties range from following detailed requirements on how to bill the government to ensuring that the products and services meet government specifications.

Click here to read the full article on *Law360.

*Subscription-based publication.

Authors

Christopher Wilkinson

Senior Counsel

CWilkinson@perkinscoie.com 202.661.5890

Seth Locke

Partner

SLocke@perkinscoie.com 202.654.6267