

Updates

August 04, 2020

Class Action Litigation in the COVID-19 Era

Hundreds of COVID-19-related class action claims have been filed in state and federal courts throughout the country. In response, Perkins Coie's Class Action Defense team has developed an integrated resource page identifying areas of increased risk for class action litigation. Our attorneys have developed checklists outlining key considerations to help companies mitigate their risk for class action lawsuits. These checklists cover areas from insurance coverage to privacy and security, general commercial litigation, antitrust, and more. For additional considerations, view our previous March 27, 2020, update.

Click the corresponding links for key considerations around each topic.

- Advertising, Marketing & Promotions
- Antitrust
- Commercial Litigation
- Insurance Coverage
- Privacy & Security
- Securities Litigation

Advertising,
Marketing &
Promotions

Securities
Litigation

An Integrated Approach:

Class Action Litigation in the COVID-19 Era

Privacy & Security

Insurance Coverage

Perkins Coie also has launched a blog to address business challenges related to COVID-19 and offer solutions in real time. Follow and subscribe here: <https://www.covid19businessguidance.com>.

© 2020 Perkins Coie LLP

Authors

Explore more in

Business Litigation Class Action Defense Insurance Recovery Law Litigation Privacy & Security
Securities Litigation Antitrust & Unfair Competition Advertising, Marketing & Promotions Healthcare

Related insights

Update

Trends in the Growth of Investment in US Data Centers Under the Trump Administration

Update

Federal Election Contribution Limits Increase for 2025-2026