

In this time of supreme uncertainty, companies have many urgent concerns.

Recent actions by the Department of Justice give businesses another thing to focus on: investigations and enforcement relating to fraud, waste, and abuse sure to trail in the wake of Covid-19 relief. Even if your company does not receive funds specifically tied to the federal government's response to the Covid-19 outbreak, you should bear in mind the risks of potential exposure to fraud allegations. Click here to read the full article as published in Bloomberg Law. Reproduced with permission. Published March 24, 2020. Copyright 2020 The Bureau of National Affairs, Inc. 800-372- 1033. For further use, please visit <http://www.bna.com/copyright-permission-request/>.

Authors

Barak Cohen

Partner

BCohen@perkinscoie.com 202.654.6337

Alexander O. Canizares

Partner

ACanizares@perkinscoie.com 202.654.1769

Explore more in

White Collar & Investigations

Blog series

White Collar Briefly

Drawing from breaking news, ever changing government priorities, and significant judicial decisions, this blog from Perkins Coie's White Collar and Investigations group highlights key considerations and offers practical insights aimed to guide corporate stakeholders and counselors through an evolving regulatory environment.

Subscribe ?

View the blog