

In this episode, The Tech Law Hangout centers on the intersection of artificial intelligence (AI) and tech law. Host Jordan Becker explores the evolving world of AI, discussing burning questions such as: Can AI creators claim exclusive rights to their software? And what happens when AI becomes the creator itself? We'll also unravel the differences between copyright and patent laws, and uncover the challenges and strategies for legally protecting AI technology. Get ready for a fascinating exploration of AI and intellectual property (IP) law.

"Patents are arguably the most powerful form of IP for protecting any type of technology or scientific invention." - Jordan Becker
