

This webinar will cover a range of hot topics around expanding and emerging U.S. restrictions on transactions involving companies with ties to “countries of concern,” including most prominently China and Russia. Our cross-disciplinary team will discuss the overall regulatory, enforcement, and political trends and how companies should be navigating critical issues such as foreign investment in the United States (CFIUS), new proposals regulating U.S. investments in foreign technology, and broad restrictions on sharing of U.S. personal data with companies in countries of U.S. national security concern.
