

A company's first institutional rounds of funding can set the stage for the long, or short, journey ahead. When making a pitch, it is important to understand exactly what information investors want and need.

Join Perkins Coie's Startup & Investor Services team for a panel event as we tackle a list of curated questions specific to early-stage startups seeking to raise a series seed or series A financing. With decades of experience working one-on-one with our startup clients, our Startup & Investor Services team works alongside our attorneys to prepare early-stage companies for the process of raising capital and targeting the right investors.
