

Janice Ta joined Yale alumni leaders host forum on disability, diversity, and civil rights.

In a livestream forum led by Yale alumni as part of the IMPACT 2 series, a diverse panel of disability rights leaders, advocates, and experts discussed the intersectionality of disability justice and the future of the national disability rights movement following the recent 30th anniversary of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), made possible after a long civil rights struggle that was led and supported by a broad coalition across the country.
