Corporate Transparency Act: FinCEN Reinstates Reporting Requirements with March 21 Deadline

Earlier this week, the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN) issued a new notice confirming that the Corporate Transparency Act's (CTA) beneficial ownership information (BOI) reporting requirements are back in effect.

Per FinCEN's notice, the CTA BOI reporting deadline is extended by 30 calendar days from February 19, 2025, meaning most companies now have until March 21, 2025, to file their CTA BOI reports.

How We Got Here

As reported in our recent Update, the CTA has faced multiple injunctions delaying enforcement of the BOI reporting requirements. Although in early January 2025 the Supreme Court of the United States initially stayed (paused) the nationwide preliminary injunction against the CTA that was issued by the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Texas in the Texas Top Cop Shop, Inc. v. Bessent case, a separate nationwide injunction in a parallel case in the same district court (Smith v. U.S. Department of the Treasury) remained in full force and further delayed enforcement of the CTA, despite addressing the same substance.

While there was uncertainty as to the position the new presidential administration would take with regard to the CTA, FinCEN has now made clear its intention to continue to defend the CTA. Shortly after the transition of administrations, FinCEN requested a stay of the Smith nationwide injunction based on the Texas Top Cop Shop decision. The stay was granted on February 17, 2025, lifting the remaining barrier to enforcement of the CTA. FinCEN issued guidance and a new deadline for reporting companies on February 19, 2025.

For more background on the injunctions, please see our December 11 and December 30 Updates.

Updated Reporting Timelines

The CTA is now enforceable against all entities required to report BOI under the implementing regulations. The following updated deadlines now apply:

- New Entities: All newly formed non-exempt reporting companies moving forward have 30 days from the date of formation to file their initial BOI reports.
- Updates to Prior Reports: Updates to previously filed reports are also due within 30 days after the date on which the change occurs.
- Entities with Lapsed Deadlines: Non-exempt reporting companies with initial reporting or updated reporting deadlines that passed during the injunction period now have until March 21, 2025, to file their BOI reports.
- Extensions: Reporting companies that qualified for extensions, such as disaster relief extensions, should adhere to their extended deadlines.
- National Small Business Association Entities: Plaintiffs in National Small Business United v. Yellen, such as entities that were members of the National Small Business Association as of March 1, 2024, are not subject to the reporting deadlines at this time.

What Comes Next?

Over the 30-day period following February 18, 2025, FinCEN will consider further revising the BOI reporting requirement deadlines, including potentially granting extensions for entities to file updates on previously filed reports. FinCEN also intends to initiate a process in 2025 to review and revise the CTA's BOI reporting regulations to reduce the burden the CTA poses on lower-risk entities, including many U.S. small businesses.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth and Eleventh Circuits continue to process the appeals relating to Texas Top Cop Shop, Smith, and National Small Business United. We do not expect these appellate cases to be decided prior to the March 21, 2025, reporting deadline.

In addition, the U.S. House of Representatives recently unanimously passed a bill that would delay CTA filing deadlines for existing entities until 2026. However, the bill has not yet passed through the U.S. Senate. It remains uncertain whether it will progress before the reinstated March 21, 2025, reporting deadline, though that would appear to be a tight timeline for legislative action.

Key Takeaways

In the short term, entities who have not yet reported their BOI should prepare to do so by the applicable deadline, as there is no guarantee of any further delay. In the long term, continue to watch this space—lengthy litigation and continued activity in the political branches regarding implementation of the CTA should be expected.
